From the Driver's Seat
David Thomas,
President

Greetings to all of our now 1,200-plus members, and Happy October!

If you were among the 180 or so people who attended our Oktoberfest at 111 Motorcars you know what a fun and highly enjoyable event it was! BIG thanks to our talented and dedicated Activities Chair, Valerie Gillespie, her husband Mike, and Valerie's entire team for putting together a really perfect event. The food from Bavarian Bierhaus was excellent, and I even got to take home a few pieces 🥰 Hähnchenschnitzel. Our favorite German band (having one of the most amazing bellringers I've ever seen), face painter, balloon-maker, and magician provided great entertainment for the younger set, and for the young-at-heart, and all within the always-enjoyable 111 Motorcars. Thanks to Jeremy Scates for his latest and generous hospitality to our club!

MORE thanks to Valerie and her team for also staging a thoroughly enjoyable PCA 70th Anniversary celebration. We packed Porsche of Nashville with maybe one hundred or more people. It was such an honor to offer the toast surrounded by so many smiling faces!

We all know Porsche is a world leader in automotive engineering and overall excellence. But I was utterly amazed to read in the September/October issue of CAR AND DRIVER what Editor Tony Quiroga had to say about the latest Taycan Turbo GT: "This is the best sports sedan ever made – full stop." WOW!

RGB MOTORS

SPORTS & CLASSIC CARS

RGBMOTORS.COM

Phone/WhatsApp 1.561.702.9700

Email rgb@rgbmotors.com

He goes on to say that the addition of Porsche Active Ride Suspension "blends near Rolls-Royce comfort with the body control and handling of a supercar. It makes the Taycan the best-riding car I've ever driven. Ride and handling are uncompromised." Quite a claim, but all the more believable to me because this is a P O R S C H E. If you can't afford the Turbo GT, which provides this feature standard, you can get it on the Taycan 4S for "only" $7,140, which is way less than PTS! Regarding performance, Quiroga says, "Intoxicating. Addictive. A dopamine drip controlled by your right foot!" I heartily recommend the entire article, which has yet another surprising statement at its conclusion.

Here's wishing everyone more beautiful October days to drive your favorite Porsches. We have an excellent Driving Activities page (managed by our long-serving Chair, Mike Moody, and hosted by our talented Webmaster Derry Kehoe!), including club drives, Porsche-related Activities such as SCCA OctoberFAST, and the Track Page for a list of track events curated by member Tim Artist.

And please be safe out there!

Story and photos by: Rob Alen

First appeared in PCA-OCR's PANDO. Special thanks to the Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg Museum and the Petersen Automotive Museum

Seventy-one years ago today, September 17, 1954, Max Hoffman, the US distributor for Porsche, presented to American racers, and the world, the Porsche 356 Speedster at the International Grand Prix for Sports Cars at Watkins Glen, New York. The Porsche 356 Speedster would become one of the most iconic sports cars, and remains so. Here is a look back...

SPEEDSTER

Mention "Speedster" to a car enthusiast and they will think of the Porsche 356 Speedster from 1954 to 1958.

Speedster goes back to horse racing days and to those fast ones who rode them. Speedster describes a type of horse and buggy: simple, light, open, fast.

For the automobile, the most notable is the late 1920s-1930s Auburn 851 Speedster. Supercharged with pontoon fenders, not so far off from what you see in the prototype class at Le Mans today. What makes the Auburn Speedster the absolute quintessence American Sports Car is the famous boattail rear. The boat hull shape had been previously seen and it wasn't until the late 1920s-early 1930s it became known as the "boattail."

The shape and term characterized the 1921 Oldsmobile 4.0 liter Model 37 Speedster, 1928 Stutz BB Boattail Speedster, 1927 Bentley 3-liter Speed Boat Tail.

It is seen on the 1928 Auburn Speedster, design credited to McFarlan in Connersville, Indiana. McFarlan coachwork was part of McFarlan Motor Company; by 1929 Auburn bought them. The following 1931-1934 Speedsters were designed by Alan Leamy who worked for Auburn and E.L. Cord, the mogul who owned Auburn, Cord, Duesenberg, all three landmark cars known for speed, innovation and elegance.

Another E.L. Cord designer Gordon Buehrig takes on credit for the 1935-1936 Auburn Speedster, though he massaged what Leamy had done. Buehrig is known for the front-wheel drive Cord, one of America's most famous automobile designs.

Austrian émigré Max Hoffman was the consummate car dealer. In the 1950s, he saw an opportunity with Porsche and became exclusive American distributor. To help sell Porsches he saw the opening for a no-frills, inexpensive car for a growing class of American racers in the 1950s.

In the fall of 1951 he requested Porsche build a lighter, cheaper and sportier car. He subsequently spelled out his specifications of what would become the Speedster.

The Porsche Speedster is a California creation.

In April 1952 Max Hoffman drove a Glockler-bodied Porsche at the Pebble Beach Road Races, confirming to him the need for a simple Porsche to go racing.

Porsche found success racing in Southern California through John von Neumann, west coast representative for Hoffman's national Porsche distributorship. He bought a "Le Mans" racing Porsche 356SL (Super Leicht), cut the roof off, replaced the windshield and won at Torrey Pines July 20, 1952; making a mark in the growing Southern California racing scene.

Successes at Torrey Pines, Paramount Ranch, Palm Springs, Pomona Fair Grounds, Riverside, Santa Barbara. was convincing for a simple, no frills Porsche to go racing.

On September 17, 1954, Max Hoffman introduced the new Porsche 356 Speedster to American racers, and the world, at the International Sports Car

Grand Prix at Watkins Glen.

Early Speedsters had 70 and 88 horsepower, with the 4-cam Carrera Type 547 engine, 115 horsepower.

One has to wonder why this simple little car, with little horsepower commands prices of a quarter of a million dollars today; and even for those still being pulled out of barns in need of expensive restoration to returned glory.

A good Porsche replica could possibly fool Ferry Porsche at ten-feet. The immediate "tell" of the handbrake between the seats has an irony, as it was specified by Max Hoffman in his original request, "The handbrake lever should be located between the seats like a Volkswagen..." A "replica" has more horsepower, disc brakes instead of a "real" Speedster's drum brakes, leather seats (Original Speedster seats were leatherette unless specified).

Porsche has merchandised its mythical models into the contemporary product lineup. "Carrera." "Targa." "Turbo" (like the Taycan Turbo? Go figure). And "Speedster".

"Speedster" reappeared on the 1989 911 (996), the last air-cooled 911; 823 were built for the U.S. market.

There is the 1994 (964) 911 Speedster; 936 were produced. In 2011 came another 911 "Speedster" (997); 356 911 Speedsters were produced as remembrance of the 356 Speedster of the 1950s.

Most recently is the 2019 (991) 911 Speedster, 1,948 were produced for the purist driver and referenced the first 356 of 1948 featuring a double humped-rear deck.

One 356 Speedster owner recently commented, "Of all the Porsches I've owned over the years the Speedster is the one I drove the most. The Speedster is a very simple machine. No non-essential components. The drum brakes all around are a mere suggestion so you quickly learn stopping the car requires advance planning. The car is just fun to drive."

Thank you very much. Rob Alen,

Stuttgart Market Letter

by David K. Whitlock

After last September marked the slowest month of 2024 with the lowest sell-through rate and dollar volume of the year, this September was anything but sluggish. With 75% of the 656 Porsches offered finding new homes for a total of $44,012,507, the market posted its second-highest sell-through rate of 2025 and an above-average dollar volume to match. Compared to 63% and $29.6 million last year—and even up from 72% and $39.3 million in August—September showed real momentum across nearly every segment. We also saw a record-setting month for GT2 RS, a headline-grabbing 356 Speedster sale, a few surprises from the '60s race car crowd, and plenty more worth unpacking below.

The GT2 RS market was small in quantity but mighty in performance this month, with just two examples crossing the block—both on the same day. The first was a wingless example that landed right within expectations at $479,111, proving that even the less traditional specs continue to find solid footing. The real headline, though, came from the second car, a Miami Blue example equipped with the Weissach Package that set a new twelve-month high at $625,000.

With 647 miles on the odometer and no Paint-to-Sample pedigree to boost its value, this result underscores continued strength at the very top of the modern GT market and shows that well-specified cars still bring the money.

The 356 market continued to show signs of softness this month with a 47% sell-through rate, but two standout Speedsters proved that the best examples still bring exceptional money. The first, a single-family-owned 1957 356A Speedster refinished in its original Ivory over Black, featured its numbers-matching engine and an older refurbishment, ultimately sold for a strong $342,000. The real star, however, came from the Gruppe P

Collection—a 1958 356A Speedster restored in the mid-2010s and finished in Silver Metallic over Red leatherette. Already a decorated concours winner, with honors including Best Porsche at the 2017 Hilton Head Island Concours, Best in Class at the 2018 Concours d'Elegance of Texas, and a Podium Award from the 2025 La Jolla Concours, it added another trophy to its shelf: a $400,000 final bid and a new twelve-month high for a Speedster online.

Interestingly, two 1960s race cars crossed the online block in September—a 1968 910 and a 1964 904 Carrera GTS. The 910 followed the trend we've seen with most period race cars lately and failed to sell at a final bid of $1,050,000. The 904, on the other hand, was a different story. Originally delivered through Brumos Porsche and boasting an impressive period competition history that includes the 1964 Bahamas Speed Week and entries at Daytona and Sebring, this Signal Red example has long been regarded as one of the better-documented 904s in private hands. Restored by Kevin Jeanette in the late 1980s and accompanied by its original Type 587/3 four-cam engine—currently serving double duty as a coffee table—it sold for a final bid of $2,375,000. That marks a healthy uptick from the $2.2 million result earlier this year and reinforces that while most vintage Porsche racers continue to remain unsold, 904s remain a stronghold in the market.

But the biggest surprise of the month came not from a 911 or 356, but from the Cayenne camp. Yes, a manual Cayenne is rare, and the Jet Green Metallic over Black leather example certainly looked the part, but this was just a standard model showing 64,600 miles. Aside from a set of 20-inch RS Spyder wheels and Porsche wood interior trim, it was mostly your run-of-the-mill Cayenne. We last saw this very SUV sell in 2021 for a strong $51,000, and with the market having cooled since then, you'd expect a result somewhere in that range or a tad below. Not this time. Two determined bidders pushed it past the $100,000 mark, with the hammer finally falling at an astonishing $125,500. An unreal number for a Cayenne, and one that makes you wonder what one of the three

6-speed Transsyberias would bring if one ever came to market. It was a September to remember, a strong showing for what's typically the "quiet" month following Monterey. The mix of record-setting results, surprise sales, and continued strength in key segments made it one of the more impressive months of the year. And as I write this, October is already off to a stunning start, with several new highs and some truly special cars we've never seen cross the block before. Watch this space next month.
